JEREMIAH CROWLEY WAS BURIED TODAY

Remains Laid to Rest in Mt. Olivet Cemetery After Funeral Services in St. Patrick's Church.

Requiem high mass for Jeremiah Crowley was celebrated at St. Patrick's church at ten o'clock this morning by the Rev. James McGinnity of Milton, who spoke words of comfort to the bereaved.

The remains were laid to rest in Mt. Olivet cemetery amid many beautiful flowers. Those acting as pallbearers were Messrs. James Arthur James Monogue, R. E. Campion, William Cosugan, Edward Manning, and Michael Hayes. Relatives and friends from out of town who attended the services were John and Eugene Crowley, Mrs. B. Crowley, John and Veronica Crowley, Mrs. B. Crowley, Mrs. H. Rowe, Alice Marion, Henry and William Bernard, Leonard and William Hennessey, and Miss Kittle Cummings, all of Chicago, Mrs. Cary of Mazomanie, and Mrs. Cunningham of Portage. Large numbers of the old neighbors of Mr. Crowley in the town of Harmony were present.

Jeremiah Crowley died at Mercy hospital at 10 o'clock Monday night, following an operation. He had been in poor health for a year and was thirty-eight years old. Six years ago he was married to Miss Clara Hennessey of Chicago. Three children were born to them, one boy and two girls, the youngest a girl six years old. He leaves to mourn his departure, besides his wife and three children, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Crowley, and brother Bartholomew of Chicago, and an aunt, Mrs. Johanna O'Connor, with whom he made his home until his marriage. Mr. Crowley was a devoted father and husband, a kind neighbor, always straightforward in his dealings with them, and leaving a good name as a heretofore to his children. He was an earnest Christian in faith and practice, and a member of St. Mary's church at Milton Junction.

Maybe Mush McCormick will see that he is properly announced when he goes in to pinch hit for the New York Giants after this. He went to bat in a recent game with the Phillies and walked off the ball for a single that went in a winning run. To his disgust and that of the Giants the run was not allowed because Umpire Klem was not in position when the hit was made, being busy announcing the entrance of McCormick. McCormick then hit into a double play and the game ended in a 12-inning scoreless tie.

Seems as if the speedsters will be turning Old Sox himself back in his tracks before long. Barney Oldfield has just lowered the world's one-mile dirt track record by whizzing around the new $100,000 track at Ekersfield, Cal., in 42.25 seconds, breaking his former record of 47.45 seconds.

These baseball heroes do get classier and classier in their pants. Here last spring the New York Yankees found it necessary to train at Bermuda. Now the White Sox of Chicago and the New York Giants have arranged for a trip around the world, starting the middle of next month. Before long they'll want to sail to the moon and stage games in the hollow craters of the lunar volcanoes.

The latest dope from the Pacific coast has it that Uncle Tom McCarty, promoter of the New York Yankees, Joe Rivers and Champion Willie Rittelle for the premier lightweight battle of the year on July 4, at Uncle Tom's Vernon arena. The fight to go 20 rounds, certainly would be a tremendous drawing card, for the fighters are masters of the peculiar styles they affect.

The Chicago White Sox might as well take a vacation from the American League pennant race. Big Ed Walsh, often called the better half of the team, is laid up with the grip and doctors say he may not play until June. It's lucky for Manager Callahan that he has discovered a wonder in Lefty Russell, the young Texas twirler who held St. Louis to two hits recently.

We sort of thought it was coming. Frank Chance has proved physically unequal to the task of managing the New York Yankees from first base and has retired to the bench in favor of Hal Chase. Thus does Peerless Hal replace the Peerless Leader.

Baltimore at last has real Sunday baseball. In the sad old days, the Orioles used to sneak out of town on the Sabbath and play without admission fee. The officials merely saw to it that everyone who came in paid the usual entrance charge for a hot dog sandwich or some pink lemonade. The free lunch idea now has been abandoned, and no awful calamity has happened, either. It did rain the first Sunday they tried it though.

The Harvard University professor who stated that witnessing baseball games has a hardening, softening, and immoral effect on the fans seems to have jumped right into a pickle vat. Germany Schaefer, comic artist affiliated with the Washington Senators, declares that the only time baseball is likely to have such an effect is after the Nationals get through with the Boston Red Sox in the next series in the Hub.

stiff were disqualified, but after looking over the standings again more carefully the men were all found to be in. Ryan, Adler and Connell will be ready to do the pitching, with Connell being the favorite, and Edler the first base. A strong lineup will face Beloit, and all possibilities point toward an easy victory, if Connell is working well. Last year, it will be remembered that he held the mighty Butters in a close pitching duel, and he will attempt to hold the fast Beloit nine to a low score on Saturday. The game will begin at 2:30 sharp, and will be played at the Driving Park. A large crowd is expected to attend the game.

THE SALARY QUESTION.
Filing a formal protest with the members of the school board last evening against the present wage scale for their services, the school teachers of the city have taken up the wage problem and brought it directly home to the citizens of Janesville. Garfield one wrote that "Next in importance to freedom and justice is popular education." The Madison Journal recently discussed this question of salaries for teachers in the following manner, editorially, and it is so directly in accord with the situation here in Janesville today it is reprinted.

"While we are at this minimum wage business, suppose we glance for a moment at the pay of a class for whom it is equally important from the point of view of society at large than are the mill hand, the department store clerk, and the factory worker—women who constitute one of the greatest of our social forces, but women whose power and value are still, because we have not yet learned to estimate them, far more potent than active.

"The Russell Sage Foundation has recently made an investigation of the school systems in the United States. One of its reports covers the salaries of our teachers. The average salary of an American teacher is $485 a year. The state of North Carolina drops this average down to $200 a year. These figures are not the minimum salaries, but the average, meaning that many fall far below them. Even the Empire state, with its fabulous wealth, has a showing of only $813 annual average.

"Such wages are a crime against our youth. Teaching should be one of the highest paid of our professions. It should invite and demand the best brains, the highest culture, the widest knowledge and experience. And the best pay should go with these requirements.

"It is time we realized that it is our own children who lose by our stinginess and indifference toward our teachers. There is no more direct and sure social boomerang than this—the injuries from overwork and under-pay always reach beyond the workers. The woman who is forced to teach a room of sixty children cannot do any of them justice. And wears herself out. Moreover, $700 a year does not tempt the best talent to undertake this. The finances of our schools are a disgrace to both American sense and American ideals. Let us divide our classes and double our salaries—as a starter, and our requirements; and see what that will do for our boys and girls as well as for those who through all the formative periods of their lives work with them. Perhaps the cry that our schools are turning out not thinkers but parrots then will be hushed.

"We should at least try. We've long enough been the fools of finance."

LEGIONS FOR WAR.
The threatening attitude of Austria towards the Balkan allies and the possibility that a general European war may be the result directs attention to the present military and naval resources of the great Powers.

It is scarcely conceivable that any contingency will arise to plunge all the great nations of Europe into a general war. The rulers themselves have more to lose—infinitely more to lose—than to gain from such a calamity, and voluntarily will never take, together or singly, steps that would provoke a universal outburst of flaming death in Europe. But there is no denying the fact that the present situation is a serious menace to continental peace, and that no one fully acquainted with that situation would be surprised at the outbreak of hostilities involving several two—at least—and perhaps three—of the six Powers usually classified as "great."

The triple alliance, between Germany, Austria-Hungary and Italy, the Franco-Russian alliance, and the friendly understandings between Great Britain and France and Great Britain and Italy, all exist primarily to maintain the status quo, but secondarily to checkmate one another in diplomatic or to fight one another in certain eventualities. It is important, therefore, to compare the offensive and defensive resources of these Powers, in a view of estimating roughly the scale of possible operations the war broke out involving any two or more of them.

The British army is the smallest of the six. Great Britain, in spite of her globe encircling possessions, is primarily not a land but a sea power. It has been the policy of the British Admiralty during the recent years to develop a 60 per cent, superiority in vessels of the Dreadnaught type over the German navy, Germany, next to Great Britain, being the strongest of the naval powers. The British land force has of late been subject to much discussion. What is called the Expeditionary Force is a by-product of the British maritime system, and it is ready, when necessary, to be placed at the disposal of England's friends. It is true that it is not large, but it would have turned the scales of any and every battle fought in modern times. It is as large as the Russian and larger than the Japanese army which fought at Liaoyang, and larger also than the Bulgarian or Turkish armies which fought in any battle of the Balkan War. For home defence the British Isles depend upon the Territorial Force. Every effort to raise this force to the full strength of 500,000 or 600,000 men has been futile, and in the opinion of military experts it will be impossible without the adoption of compulsion to take the field at once upon the dispatch of the Expeditionary Force and to guarantee the safety of the country in case of invasion by a continental army.

Germany and France are rivaling one another in their feverish efforts to increase their armed strength. Roughly speaking, Germany is aiming at a five million men standard for her army, but is well known that a dependence upon members alone is not a failing of German military administrators, who are consistent in seeking to improve the quality and not the quantity of the first line. The increase in the German army and navy of late has been such as to seriously threaten Great Britain's "60 per cent, superiority" standard. The salient feature in German naval progress is not so much the increase in size and power of every class of warship, although this has been most marked, but the further preparation for the immediate use of the whole of the effective fleet. Also to be reckoned is the German air fleet, admittedly the finest in the world.

France, impelled rather by the extraordinary acceleration of shipbuilding in Italy and Austria-Hungary, is making strenuous efforts to recover the ground lost in recent years. At the same time every possible increase in the French army which can be effected, by financial and administrative methods is being made without delay.

Italy's navy is rapidly assuming respectability, and the fleet of Italy's armed forces is her cavalry. The peace footing is 275,000; this can be raised in a week to upwards of 1,000,000 men. Austria-Hungary has recently passed laws which will much increase the military strength of the Dual Monarchy. Roughly speaking, the old organization produced about 1,214,000 trained men. The new laws will eventually raise this figure to 1,820,000.

The Russian army is the largest of all Europe and steps have been taken recently to further increase its size and efficiency. While there are continued signs of renewed activity in Russian naval construction, the acceleration in shipbuilding which is so noteworthy in Italy and Austria-Hungary has not been equalled. According to present plans the armies of the Central European powers will be increased by 1,500,000 trained men before the end of the year. These additions are not considered excessive from the military point of view, because, apart from all other considerations, the Russian contingent of recruits approximately equals that of Germany and Austria combined.

It Spread Easier.

One cold night a few years ago, we were all seated at the table eating our dinner. The butter was very hard, and consequently, remarks were made about it. The next week the weather was very warm and the butter was somewhat soft. Little Billy, six years old, suddenly exclaimed: "Mamma, the butter is easy tonight, isn't it?"

*Same number of teachers as Janesville.

In the case of the ward school teachers a raise in the maximum wage from $60 at present to $75 a month, or from $720 to $712 a year was requested while the high school teachers declared that it did not seem unreasonable to them that they should receive at least $1,000 a year after a period of five years' service.

The entire matter was taken under consideration of a committee and it is probable that definite action will be taken at the regular meeting next Monday evening.

The grade school teachers, nearly sixty in number, all signed a petition of a somewhat exhaustive character in which is reviewed the actual living cost of an average teacher, and in which also are some timely comparisons with the wage scales of other cities in the state. Janesville citizens generally will doubtless be impressed with the fairness of the claims made by the teachers and will be interested in the arguments presented which are given in full below: To the Members of the Board of Education:

In meeting the Board this evening we are fully alive to the fact that at all times the teachers of Janesville have received the fairest of treatment at their hands. We fully realize that in the past few years the minimum salary has been raised, that the first step of promotion has been made greater and that the maximum salary is now higher than it was in the past. For all of these we are thankful to the Board, but once more we find it necessary to approach you with a request for greater consideration. For the past two years the maximum salary paid to the grade teachers has been sixty dollars ($60) per month for nine and one-half months, or five hundred and twenty dollars ($520) per year. Putting this on the basis of nine months basis upon which she must stand, it gives her an average monthly wage of forty-seven dollars and fifty cents ($47.50).

The minimum salary received by the city teachers of our high school is eighty dollars ($80) per month, making the salary of the least paid of these teachers seven hundred sixty dollars ($760) per year, or an average of $63.33 per month.

The citizens expect, and justly to find among their teachers women of refinement and culture, trained to impart to the youthful mind the knowledge that he must have to cope with the problems of life. She must spend years of hard study in preparing herself for this work and the actual money spent during these years is by no means a small item.

Preparatory training is necessary and where constant effort to become more efficient must be made, there is always the incentive that in the years to come one will be in a position where a comfortable living may be secured. Gratitude and honor, while they may be soul satisfying, do not go far in helping the teacher to meet the constant demand upon her pocket-book. For seven dollars and fifty cents ($47.50) per month she is asked to do the highest goal that she may hope to reach, and when her living expenses have been deducted from this there is but a pitiful surplus to lay away for those years when no longer young nor competent, she must still live, eat and be sheltered from the cold. And if the past is a criterion by which to judge, there is little hope that the future those expenses will grow less.

The grade teachers of Beloit, whose maximum salary has also been sixty dollars ($60) per month, have prepared an expense schedule that seems to be an average of the average expenses, and it may not be amiss to present this here for your consideration.

No teacher expects to be paid for her actual worth. No money value can be placed upon the real work she is doing, but we feel that she should at least know that her efforts are to bear fruit as she becomes more efficient.

Knowing the struggle that most of our teachers have to make, both ends meet during the summer months we feel that a request for a maximum salary of seventy-five dollars ($75.00) per month for nine and one-half months, or a yearly wage of seven hundred twelve dollars and fifty cents is not unreasonable. That will give her an average monthly wage of fifty-nine dollars, thirty-seven and one-half cents ($59.37).

The great majority of our teachers today find it absolutely necessary to do one of two things during the summer months. Either she must work during her vacation, or she must live in the charity of her family or friends. In either case she is a heavy loser. One course takes away from her self-respect and weakens her confidence in her own wisdom in choosing a life work. The other weakens her physical well-being and nervous force. She comes back to her school in September tired and nervous, looking forward to her first Saturday with relief, and there her school becomes a serious loser.

In mentioning these things, we desire to state that we believe the principle of having a schedule based upon merit, professional preparation, and time of service is just and equitable. We are perfectly willing to defer to the judgment of the superintendent and the Board of Education as to whether a teacher should be advanced, or retained at the same salary, or given a lower salary, or be dropped from the corps of teachers. We believe that the teachers ought to render most efficient service for the pay received, but we do feel that some inducement ought to be held out for teachers to become more proficient and more successful, and when such proficiency and success is attained that a higher maximum than sixty dollars a month, that is five hundred sixty dollars a year, should be the financial end attainable.

High School Petition.
To the members of the Board of Education, Janesville, Wis.
Gentlemen: We the undersigned women instructors in the High School, respectfully request the careful consideration of the school board to the matter of our salaries.

Individually, we desire a full inspection of our work and merits, by all members of the school board.

We desire a comparison of the salaries paid us, with those paid in other first-class high schools for similar work.

We respectfully call the attention of this honorable board to the fact that there has been but slight increase of salary paid to any woman of this high school since her entrance upon work here, although the cost of living has materially advanced during these years.

Also we wish to call attention to the fact that the reports made upon our work by the state and the university inspectors has been continuously favorable.

It seems to us not unreasonable that after teaching five years successfully in a first-class high school a person should be receiving not less than one thousand dollars per year.

NORTHERN ORATORICAL CONTEST TO BE HELD AT OBERLIN

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Oberlin, O., May 2.—Today the hotels and fraternity houses of Oberlin are thronged with college students who are here to attend the annual contest of the Northern Oratorical League, the greatest event of the year in western collegiate circles. Seven speakers, the best of the university students, are to engage in the contest. The contestants, their subjects and the colleges they represent are as follows: Alvin Carl Reis, University of Wisconsin; "The Industrial Revolution," George C. Clark, University of Iowa; "Slaves of Tradition," J. Howard Hinshaw, University of Illinois; "Liberty and License," Perival V. Blomshard, University of Michigan; "Christianity and the Social Order," Henry L. Wells, Northwestern University; "Patriotism of Progress," Luther H. Gulick, Oberlin College; "The Fight for Modernism," and Miss Lillian Byrnes, University of Minnesota. "The Significance of the Woman Movement." Miss Byrnes is the first woman ever to appear in a contest of the league.

SPEAKERS COMPETE IN BELOIT CONTEST

Evelyn Welsh and Allen Dearborn Represent Local School in District Event Tonight.

Allen Dearborn and Evelyn Welsh will represent the Janesville high school tonight at the Beloit high school in the district contest in oratory and declamatory. Both speakers are confident of victory and although they must meet some real competition they feel that they have a good chance of winning. Allen Dearborn will speak on "Modern Fendalism" while Miss Welsh will deliver "Nilemmium" as her declamation. Beloit and Evansville contestants are entered.

On Saturday morning, Mr. Dearborn will again speak in Beloit, but this time he will speak under the auspices of Beloit college. They hold annually an interscholastic contest for contestants from Illinois and Wisconsin, and while this is only the preliminary contest, their orations will be out to four minutes, and any one speaking over time will be marked off accordingly. The final will follow in about one week.

FRECKLES

Now is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as a new prescription, called "double strength"—has been discovered that is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of ointment—double strength—from Badger Drug Co., and apply a little of it night and morning, and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the "double strength" ointment as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

CHIEF H. C. KLEIN REVIEWS PAST YEAR

IMPORTANT RECOMMENDATIONS
MADE IN FIRST ANNUAL RE-PORT TO COUNCIL.

NEED RESERVE PUMP

Waterworks Not Equal to Emergencies
That Might Arise—Old Fire Engine in Bad Condition.

Recommendations of an important character, statements as to the present condition of the fire department, and a review of its activities during the past year, are contained in the annual report of Chief Engineer H. C. Klein, which has just been filed with the city council. This is the first report of its kind to be submitted, it being the policy of the present council to call for such reports in all departments of municipal activity. The report in full is given below:

To the Mayor and Councilmen of the City of Janesville, Wisconsin: Gentlemen:—I herewith submit an annual report as Chief Engineer of the Fire Department. The same being my first annual report under the Commission Form of Government.

Since April 15th, 1912, to the present time, the department has been in a state of emergency, and has been ever before, for the same period of time.

During the past year our city has suffered from many incendiary fires, some of which have been counterproductive, by reason of the confusion of the guilty party, but there were other incendiary fires that we have not as yet apprehended the guilty parties. In connection with this I wish to say that the state fire marshal, who is working diligently on the same, and has ever since they were reported to him and he gives me assurance that he will continue to do so.

The last big fire of incendiary origin was on the evening of April first, and destroyed three frame buildings containing eight stores. These buildings except that owned by the Myers estate had the walls covered with shingles and brick facades, which afforded virtually no resistance to the progress of the flames from one store to the other. Within three minutes from the time of giving the alarm all buildings were enveloped in flames. After working for some time, the fire engine, which became evident to the officers in charge that it would be impossible to save any of them, that were then ablaze and all efforts were then directed to arresting the spread of the fire beyond the burning buildings. With this object in view twelve lines of hose were deployed as rapidly as possible, but when the eleventh and twelfth stream were turned on it became evident to the Chief Engineer that the water supply was inadequate. "bled" to a point beyond the pumping capacity of the Janesville Water Co. As soon as possible, two streams were removed from the fire plug, leaving ten in service, after which that number of fire streams were obtained.

For the reason that no water could be obtained from the waterworks, and that burning, rafting and debris from the burning buildings on Milwaukee street, endangered the frame building, the Chief Engineer, as a precautionary measure had our steam fire engine "spotted" at the east end of this bridge to guard the threatened buildings. After the fire had been extinguished, the fire engine was moved to the east end of the Milwaukee street bridge and set to work, where it threw a powerful stream through the turret pipe of nearly a thousand gallons of water a minute for a period of nearly seven hours.

Your Chief Engineer is of the opinion that this fire was of incendiary origin. All evidence that can be obtained points to this conclusion. My experience as a fireman, covering a period of twenty years, leads me to believe that a system known as the "blow-out" was employed. What agency was used to excite this "blow-out" is unknown to me. Suffice it to say that whoever started the fire is a past master in this art.

At this time I desire to call the attention of the Council to the water supply as furnished by the Janesville Water Co. During my incumbency as Chief Engineer of the Department the water supply furnished has been adequate to all cases to cope with such fires as we have had in that time. But it is evident to me from past experience should Janesville get a fire similar to that we had on April first, with the temperature at ten below zero, when a large number of our citizens persist in leaving their faucets waste water to prevent their service pipe from freezing the Janesville Water Company does not possess sufficient pumping capacity to supply water to cope with a fire of this magnitude.

Believing that the city of Janesville should be prepared to meet any contingency of this kind I would respectfully ask and recommend that some action be taken to see that the same agreement be reached between the city and the Janesville Water Company that will lead to the installation of a large and powerful pump, adequate to meet any and all demands.

For some years past, your Chief Engineer has endeavored to have the West Side Fire Station repaired so that the same would be placed in a habitable and sanitary condition but without results. Some time after the present city administration came into power an order was passed directing the Chief Engineer to make necessary repairs. These have at this time been partially completed and the rest of the work necessary will be done before the close of this season.

It was apparent for several years that cellar nozzles could be used to good advantage. Two were therefore purchased within the last month. The wisdom of this was fully demonstrated by their recent use at the conflagration on the Milwaukee Street bridge, where they paid for themselves many times over. The cost of the same was $30.

Last September your Chief Engineer recommended to the council that one thousand feet of fire hose be purchased. That recommendation was favorably acted upon and the contract for the same placed during the month of November. The hose arrived the following month and before being accepted withstood the most severe test ever given any hose in the Fire Department. After this test it was pronounced a strictly first class article. I was agreeably surprised at the price paid for the same, it being the cheapest piece of hose ever purchased by the city, grade considered.

From time to time the last few years the Chief Engineer has pleaded with each succeeding Common Council that some action be taken for the removal or raising of such wires as would be apt to hinder the Fire Department from using our large fire ladders in the fire limits, up to this time nothing has been done in this matter. Therefore, I respectfully recommend that some action be taken that will place all wires at least 40 feet from the ground in the fire limits, wherever needed or the same placed underground.

On April first, 1912, there was passed an ordinance governing or regulating the running of public places, such as, public halls, auditoriums and theatres. As this now reads: your Chief Engineer has no vested authority to enter these places while entertainments or shows are going on, and is therefore not in a position to see whether or not this ordinance is being complied with. Knowing it to be the duty of the council to give this protection to the theatre-going public, I will respectfully ask that this ordinance be amended so that it can be watched by your Chief Engineer during time of shows or other public doings.

During the month of October last it became apparent to the Chief Engineer that the heart of the fire alarm system was defective, being the automatic "repeater" report of this was made to the Mayor who directed that this defect be repaired as soon as possible, whereupon the Chief Engineer picked the same and sent it to the factory for this purpose. It has been returned and is now in first class condition.

The aerial wires of our fire alarm system strung throughout the city are in a very unreliable condition on account of aged poles and cross-arms, and for the reason that a certain public utility company has recently rebuilt its lines and the interest of the city was not properly subserved in acquiring the right to use the poles of the company as has been the custom with all public utility companies of this description. Your Chief Engineer does not know what action to take in this matter and desires to be instructed by the council thereto.

Believing that the time is not far distant when all aerial wires in the downtown district should be placed underground, and that the city should take the first action in this matter, your Chief Engineer would respectfully request that a small appropriation be made as an initial start to placing all fire alarm wires in underground conduits within the fire limits or downtown districts.

Last fall a new system of "time out" for firemen was inaugurated, this privilege having been requested, time after time from various councils. Its continuance will depend upon whether it is abused to the detriment of the efficiency of the department.

Several additions to the equipment of the department have been made recently and consists of the following: One twenty-four foot extension ladder and one fourteen foot roof ladder with folding hooks and aerial ladder pipe to be used for the purpose of conveying a stream of water from the lower extension of the aerial ladder to the second or third floor of any burning building. It can be manipulated from the ground, and is easily buried, therefore will ask that the water company be requested to raise the same. I will call the attention of the council to the condition of our old fire engine which is used in the protection of the Southwest part of the city. This machine is in a dangerous condition at this time by reason of a weak and leaky boiler. In fact this boiler is so bad that the bottom or crown sheet is apt to let go anytime, and in case of this happening it would be liable to scald the fireman very severely, and as this is the only means we have at this time to give this district fire protection, I will ask that this boiler be repaired so that water mains be extended to this district.

The Fire Department can use to advantage at large fires three more shut-off nozzles. There is also need of six more pole hooks to properly equip our hook and ladder outfits. I will therefore recommend that these be purchased, as well as two large pick axes to replace those lost at the Milwaukee Street bridge fire.

In the closing of a contract with the Seagrave Company for the purchase of an automobile hose, and chemical vehicle, I believe the city will have as good a machine as it is possible to buy at this time. Upon its arrival the fire department will be able to make quick responses to alarms and afford much better protection to the residential portions of the city. While the contract calls for delivery of the apparatus ninety days from the date it was closed (Feb. 4th) which would bring it on May 4th, your Chief Engineer anticipates that there will be a delay in shipment because of the floods at Columbus, Ohio, where the machine is being made. It will probably be the first of June before the same arrives and in the meantime the city will have to be patient in view of the company's misfortune.

At this time and in this manner the Chief Engineer of the Fire Department desires to thank the citizens of the Fire Police Company, the Police Department and all who so willingly assisted the Fire Department in time of need on the evening of April first.

In closing this report I desire to extend to the Mayor and Council thanks for the uniform courtesy shown the Chief Engineer and the Fire Department, and for their prompt response to all demands that required speedy attention.

April 5, 1913.

Respectfully submitted,
H. C. KLEIN,
Chief Engineer.

At the THEATER

"THE PRICE." a modern drama of every day life by George Broadhurst will be seen at the Myers Theater on Saturday May 3, matinee and evening. The approbation with which this remarkable play has been received by the patrons of the theater leads Manager Myers of the Myers Theater to believe the demand for seats will be as great as in other cities, and in

The America Feature Film company were on the field of action, and placed camera men with both armies, the result being the most thrilling, exciting views of modern warfare ever flashed on a screen. Fads and Fashions

New York, May 1.—It is stated on good authority that the demand for silks this year is greater than it has been for a number of seasons. Not only is the quantity greater, but the variety of kinds used is almost unprecedented. One can see the reason for it in every display of gowns. The immense popularity of the silk suits contributes to this demand but the afternoon gowns in silk are so unusually interesting that they have been very successful.

While in France the tagetas, tussor and charmeuse are the most popular among the numerous silk fabrics of the season, the former two do not seem to find much favor with American women, surely not so much as charmeuse and several other materials of a similar character.

The present rage for dancing has greatly added to the importance of dancing frocks as part of the feminine wardrobe. Chiffon or satin is in most cases the foundation of the handsomest of these frocks. Chiffon is extensively used at the present time and it seems as if there were scarcely a costume in which chiffon does not play a more or less important part. One of the loveliest dresses shown at a recent exhibit was of pale mauve, chiffon. Of course the greater part of the waist was of net and shadow lace; but otherwise there was no trimming except a picot edge over the chiffon. The drapery, however, was wonderful. It was brought up to the waist in the middle of the front in many long, soft folds. These were tucked up under the belt so that the ends showed above it in almost a ruffle, which was bound with turquoise blue silk.

These contrasting bindings were a conspicuous detail in many of the gowns exhibited. Sometimes they were in black on beige, or turquoise on pale gray, or white on a silk Bedford cord in which the ribs were rose and white alternately. The bindings were narrow, not a quarter of an inch in width, and were used in various ways.

There was, for example, a naive charmeuse dress with a tunic of black net perfectly black net which was cut so as to ripple slightly around the bottom. The edges of the very short sleeves and the lower edge of the tunic were bound with a little roll of turquoise satin. This stiffened it just enough to make the ripple apparent, while the color contrast was most effective. The black, of course, being over the mauve, was softened and became a mere veiled color.

Many of the skirts showed a slash of greater or lesser degree. Often these cuts were only a few inches deep. They were frankly cut out of the hem of the breadth, not formed by short coats are trimmed in fur that overlapping draperies. In some of the trained evening gowns there were long splits where the drapery crossed in front, and these showed the leg, in walking, almost to the knee.

A tailored suit in dark blue serge had two rows of buttons and buttonholes from the waist to the hem; one at the side, toward the front; the other at the opposite side, toward the back. These were left to the height of about six buttons, producing two slashes.

So many evening wraps and dressy it looks as if fur would be a part of the summer's fashions to the best of the fur is more than mere touch to the evening wraps, while on the jaunty little abbreviated coats it is used only sparingly. Chinchilla is the most popular peltry but ermine and swansdown are also used. Chinchilla looks rather heavy and wintry, while the white fur and swansdown give a light summery effect.

Evening wraps, as a rule, are very sumptuous. They are generally made in solid and figure-faced satins. As a rule the flowers or designs are big and are printed so as to stand out boldly. The background is white or light and the flowers in the brilliant colors that are prevalent this season. Some of the fashionable ones, too, have a black or scarlet background with lighter brilliant designs scattered over the surface. The new wraps are all short and round. Some are made solid, some with a Watteau plait, either from the middle of the back or from one shoulder.

Tulle de Jouy effects have returned to favor triumphantly. The patterns and colorings are copied in satins, silks, velvets, brocades, and in crepe cotton goods. For the last few years toile de Jouy has been more or less used as a light trimming, it being considered too heavy and vulgar for anything more than a suggestion in the way of color or flower. Now it is used frankly and without any attempt at discreet moderation.

Blouse vests are composed of the toile de Jouy, and when repeated in more expensive fabrics entire sleeves wraps and coats may be of the effect. At a recent exhibit there was a lovely evening dress of satin the shade of chamois, the skirt draped to fall in little plaits down the front, and the fullness gathered to form an overskirt at the back. The pointed back and front of the corsage was relieved by a fichu of white mousseline. The cachet and novelty lay in the sleeves, which were of charmeuse mousseline, striped heavily in purple, metal effects.

Another evening dress had long sleeves which ran almost to the waist line of the corsage underneath, and on top, almost to the neck. These sleeves were of yellow satin on which were painted the most brilliantly colored flowers. The rest of the frock was of reseda, green, and the violet colors in the sleeves gave all the character necessary to the ensemble. The long sleeve idea has taken wonderfully and women seem to like it so much that probably next winter evening gowns will all be cut on the same lines. However, there will always be those who will cling to short sleeves or sleeveless waist—women who have beautiful arms or think they have.

Ratine is an excellent material for the summer knockabout. Its price for the yard is expensive, but it is wide. Ratine, of course, has not the crispness of linen and crash but it is moderately cool and it made carefully, looks light and summery. It shows creases and wrinkles hardly so much as serge does. The blue, green and other dark shades suitable for street wear do not soil easily and when they are soiled, they can be laundered without starch. A ratine suit, with shirt-waists of cotton crepe, voile or tub silks would make an ideal working outfit for the summer woman. An outfit at once durable, suitable, comfortable and in good style.

Among the most attractive of the new printed crepons are those with a light ground and sprays of flowers scattered, white with sprays of scarlet anemones, or turquoise blue powdered with green laurel leaves; an artistic shade of pale blue with stripes of Indian red on which sprays of white flowers have been thrown. It is predicted by fashion authorities that coats of heavy linen in bright colors will be extremely popular this spring. FLORENCE FAIRBANKS.

NEW MODEL FOR "FISHER GIRL"; SHE'S PRETTIEST THING IN MOVING PICTURES

Miss Alice Joyce.

There is to be a new Harrison Fisher girl, and the type which the New York artist has made familiar the country over is to be varied by the use of Miss Alice Joyce, a moving picture actress, as a model. A brunette, vivacious and lively, she will be used in pictures of action and merriment. The model formerly used by Fisher, Miss Catherine Clements is particularly suited to repose. The new model will appear in magazine covers within a few months.

Dress As Well As You Can Afford

YOUNG men who can afford to dress well---in these days no young man can afford not to---find that $25 is about the right price to pay for clothes; and that our suits, ready, are the best value they can get for the money.

EVEN those who think $25 is more than they can afford are learning that the better fabrics, the better linings and trimmings, the better tailoring at $25 give a satisfaction and service that are worth more than the difference in the price; you'll pay $40 or $50 for such qualities if made-to-measure.

THE day when men of good sense and taste thought they could get all they wanted in clothes at $15 has been long since passed; and the day when the made-to-measure idea can charm a lot of extra dollars out of a man's pocket is passing.

YOU'LL see here ready clothes that meet all the requirements of well-dressed men; the styles are correct to the smallest detail; the fabrics and other materials are the best; the tailoring is thorough and high grade; the clothes fit.

WHAT more do you want? You can get our suits as low as $18, and as high as $50; but we emphasize $25 as a good starting point; a man ought to dress as well as he can afford.

CULTIVATION MEANS EVERYTHING TO CROP

TOO MUCH ATTENTION CANNOT BE PAID TO THIS DEPARTMENT OF CORN RAISING.

CONSERVES MOISTURE

Gives Air to Roots and Kills the Weeds—Late Cultivation is Strongly Recommended.

By Noyes Raessler.

There is no work upon the farm that will bring better returns than the time spent in the cornfield with a good cultivator. If farmers could only realize the relation between good cultivation and good corn, we would see more care and less haste exercised in this branch of farm work. If we stop to think of the reasons why the soil must be stirred up in order to supply air to the organisms beneath the surface, for these are the means of converting the crude elements of the soil into available food for the plant's roots to use. If we allow a crust to form on the surface of the soil, it soon shuts off the air supply to the soil bacteria and they cannot perform their functions properly.

Again, we must be careful in breaking the crust, not to go so deep as to injure the corn roots, nor leave the surface in coarse lumps, as this promotes excessive evaporation and the soil will suffer through lack of sufficient moisture. In other words we must use a cultivator with fine shovels and go very shallow after the corn is 24 inches in height.

It will outline briefly the system we are using and one which can be used to a good advantage on any farm regardless of its size.

Assuming that the corn has been planted in a carefully prepared seed bed, we are ready for the weeder. This is the best implement to use before and after the corn is up and can be kept going until the corn is six inches in height. A light hand, very nicely but will tear up more corn if the ground is not in perfect condition.

For the past four years we followed the weeder with an eight-shovel sulky cultivator, going six inches deep the first time through and close enough to the corn to roll a fine mulch under the shields to make a complete mulch over the strip of uncultivated land. Several times we have had inquiries as to the particular kind of cultivator we use. I will say that up to this year we have used what is known as the "Little Janesville" eight-shovel sulky, but this year we are cultivating with a sulky with a six-shovel front and a two-horse walker, and a six-shovel back, made by the same firm. The reason we discontinued the use of the sulky is because the work can be done more thoroughly when the wheels are controlled by hand, and if you travel through the country during the summer time you will be surprised at the number of farmers who are using the walking cultivator in place of the rider. Instead of waiting for the weeds to tell us when to make the second cultivation, we start going crosswise just as soon as we have finished one row.

We wait just a week or ten days and start in for the third time. This time the shovels go down only four inches and are spread out one notch. The fifth cultivation follows a week later, going only three inches deep, and this process is continued until the corn is too high for the cultivator to straddle the row. This is a very critical time in the life of the corn plant and as a rule the corn is left to take care of itself from this time on till harvest.

We aim to keep a one-horse twelve-tooth cultivator going at intervals of about ten days, up until the corn begins to tassle out. The object is purely to conserve moisture and is not necessary to go more than one inch deep. This forms a fine dust mulch on the surface and does not cause damage to the corn roots, though, of course, a few of them are sacrificed.

In a season with abundance of rainfall like we had last year, it would be necessary to continue the late cultivation later, as moisture is concerned, there was a great plenty. However, the weeds were destroyed in this way more than reason enough to keep the cultivator going. I don't think I have ever remembered a severe drought struck in July and continued all through August. Here our late cultivation showed its real benefit. In order to determine the value of late cultivation, we left a portion of the field about the 10th of July to take care of itself. In the early part of August this part of the field showed indications of suffering by "drying" at the bottom, while the late cultivated was green and thrifty.

By the third week in August the uncultivated corn was drying up so fast that it had to be cut for fodder. Our late cultivated corn was not cut until a month later and produced a good crop of corn for that year. A bushel per acre. The rest of the field produced nothing but rubbings and was practically a failure. It is now laid considerable stress on late cultivation. It must not be understood that what is neglected in the early part of the season can be made up later. I have seen many a promising cornfield come to grief just because the farmer tried to make up for lost time by starting the cultivator after a period of three weeks' rest. He simply used the wrong shovels. Instead of going one inch deep he dug up about four inches of soil laden with corn roots and robbed the plants of a portion of their means of food supply. Besides he left the surface in a lumpy condition promoting rapid evaporation of soil moisture.

The question, does our system pay on a larger scale, can be easily answered. We often hear a farmer say he could never think of cultivating less than one hundred acres and take as much out as we get with the work. That is, very true, but it is the claim for the boy to demonstrate how the problem can be solved by producing the same yield on a smaller acre.

age and this is one of the facts which will be brought out by the great corn contest.

After teaching for two years she was married on June 5, 1912, to Fred L. Richardson, and since then their home has been in Newville. The young couple had rented a new home and were looking forward happily to living there, when she was taken sick and, although everything possible was done to restore her to health, she passed away Wednesday, April 23, after a long illness, heart failure being the immediate cause of death.

They do not hunt in packs, like wolves, but usually live and hunt apart, with their mates. In bodily conformation they are much like the Eskimo dog, but of slighter build.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

ORATORY.

(By Howard L. Rann.)

e methidhis huffom oh, mm m m ORATORY is the art of stringing ornate words together in long testoons and throwing them about a large room. An orator is a person who can do this three nights out of four with out a cough.

down in the middle of a sentence and a r o p i n g blindly for some thought which he supposed he brought with him.

As used nowadays, oratory is a sure passport to fame. It does not make a n y difference whether a man pays his grocery bills or wears a necktie or mistakes the finger bowl for bouillon if he can orate at the drop of the hat without having to steal a shy look at his manuscript, this place in society is secure. There is a great demand for ready-to-wear orators than there is for hired girls who will not want to entertain their gentlemen friends in the parlors.

The simplest method of getting into congress is to practice oratory in the attic and then make a series of stump speeches in behalf of reform. Congress is running over with men who would still be putting their figures on baby carns and premium fairs if nature had not endowed them with a six-inch flow of red-corpuscul oratory. Whenever the constituents of one of these congressmen complain that a little less talk and a few more pensions would be acceptable, all he has to do is to return home and unning a patriotic address on the battle of Gettysburg, which rehashes him at once.

There is quite a good deal of oratory in the pulpit, and as a rule the more oratory there is, the less religion people get out of it. Blotting out a good thing, so long as it doesn't choke piety to death, it isn't necessary to be a college graduate in order to be able to orate at break-neck speed. Some of the greatest orators the world has ever produced have had to have their language cauterized and calclmized by the editor before it was fit to mingle with the copy book.

Oratory is an excellent thing to have, but a knowledge of the rotation of crops and the proper temperature of a 200-egg incubator will yield larger dividends.

Easy to Spot Him. "How do you know that fellow is a great business man?" asked the hotel manager. "By his signature," replied the clerk. "He is so used to keeping secrets that you don't even know what his name is unless he chooses to tell you."

The Evening Chit-Chat

ON EXPECTING THANKS.
 "WHEN you receive a favor remember it. When you bestow one forget it."

Some weeks ago the Lady-who-always-knows-somewhat sent a beautiful bunch of roses to her washerwoman on the occasion of the latter's silver wedding anniversary.

Something recalled this fact to us the other day, and the Author-man's wife asked, "Was she very much pleased? She ought to have been."

"I imagine so," said the Lady-who-always-knows-somewhat. "She is one of those rare people who really do not like to have their charities talked about."

"Don't you know? Hasn't she written you or anything?"

"Why no, she hasn't," said the Lady. "Her daughter met me on the street and told me that her mother had come and tell me, but that she had had an attack of the rheumatism and two of the younger children had the measles, and so she hadn't been able to get out."

"And that was seven weeks ago," reckoned the Author-man's wife, and she hadn't written. I think that's an outrage. It just shows how ungrateful some people are."

"I don't think it shows anything of the sort," said the Lady-who-always-knows-somewhat, warmly, "and I hadn't even thought of it until you spoke. I know she was pleased and I'm glad, and I know how busy she is and how hard it is for her to write a formal letter, and I don't care if she never thanks me."

I admired the Lady-who-always-knows-somewhat for remembering to send the flowers to her washerwoman. I admire her still more for being big enough not to insist on being formally thanked.

The generosity that thrives upon thanks and dies without them is scarcely worthy of the name at all.

To insist upon thanks is like exacting interest upon your kindness, and thus changing it from a gift into a loan. I have known many people who would give lavishly of time or effort or money if they received plenty of praise and thanks, but the moment these personal stimulants cease, the giving ceased too. I even knew one woman who was not satisfied with the thanks implied in praise and delight unless the recipient actually said, "I thank you."

The real generosity is too busy giving and giving again, to keep tabs on all its recipients and make sure they are duly grateful.

Don't taint your generosity by exacting thanks.

When you receive a favor remember it.

When you bestow one forget it.

Our United States department of agriculture has just issued a farmers' bulletin, No. 526, on "Mutton and its Value in the Diet."

Mutton, while not so commonly used in the middle west and east, has been largely the meat food with beef in the western states. In fact, the standing order on a bill-of-fare is "roast beef and mutton."

In the middle and eastern states, the preference has been for lamb. In fact, it is always called "lamb" even when a year-old.

Lamb has not the same nutritive value as mutton, but differs about the same as the flesh of any young animal does from that taken from the mature animal. Pound for pound, mutton has a larger amount of tissue forming substances and higher energy value than lamb.

Directions:—Wipe the meat, remove the skin and fat and cut the meat into small pieces. Put into the kettle with bones and cover with the water. Heat gradually to the boiling point and season with salt, paprika, bay leaf and parsley. Cook slowly until the meat is tender, about 2 1/2 hours. Remove the fat in the fat separator. Reheat to boiling point, add the rice or barley and cook until the rice or barley is tender. If barley is used, use 1/2 cup to 1 cup of meat.

add seasonings and cook them slowly in the stock for two hours. Rub the flour and butter together and add to them a little of the hot broth. Stir until the mixture is smooth, then add it to the broth.

When no mutton stock is on hand prepare it from two pounds of mutton from the forequarter. Remove the meat from the bone and cut into small pieces, and for convenience, tie the bones in a small piece of cloth and cook in the same water in which the meat is cooked. In this case serve the meat with the broth.

SOMETHING ABOUT FATS.

The difference between fats and oils is that oil is liquid at ordinary temperature. Olive oil is our choicest oil, but too expensive to use in cooking in this country. When adulterated, it has a sweet, fatty, pleasant flavor, which is so well liked by those who get good oil. The greatest reason for the dislike of olive oil which so many people express, is the inferior stuff with which they have been served.

Cotton seed oil is one of our great exports to the southern countries of Europe, and returns to us at many times its original value as "pure olive oil."

"Cotton seed oil is excellent for many uses, and when it is mixed with sweet is called cottonseed or cotton oil."

Butterine or oleomargarine is made from the oily part of beef and pork fat churned with milk, mixed with butter to give it flavor, salted and colored.

Good butterine is clean, wholesome and nutritious, and so like good butter that it is not easy to tell the difference. Being cheap, it should be sold cheap, but poor butter still leads it in price.

Fat being a heat giver, we know why we enjoy fats in meat, and more fatty foods during the cold months, although even in the tropics fat is used largely on rice. So we find that in all climates it is necessary for the maintenance of the bodily functions.

It is a noticeable fact that thin, delicate girls and women have an antipathy for fat meat, and often any kind of fat. They are the ones who especially need it, and it should be given them in such a form that it will be tempting and digestible.

Fats undergo less change in the alimentary canal than other foods. By various processes the fat is so finely divided that it is taken up by the blood and the lacteals.

Fried foods and pastry are hard to digest because the particles of fat cover the starch and protein so that such foods are not exposed to the action of the digestive juices, causing indigestion and more serious disturbances. Slow and careful mastication with salivation is a great help.

Desire, the Voice of Ability

SHE sat among a little crowd of business women listening to a lecture on a purely business subject. She was a tiny mite of a woman with a sensitive mouth and big, dreamy, wistful eyes. And it was plain to be seen she was giving little heed to the lecture.

For her heart wasn't on business. She was doing her present work because she could earn a large salary, and with this salary buy things the world said she ought to have; and because this work seemed the practical, sensible thing to do; and because her family approved of it—or rather, of the salary.

But her ambitions were elsewhere; and so she sat there, to her co-workers, a successful, business girl; to herself, a dissatisfied, unhappy individual. For she was feeding her soul on husks, and she wanted to get up and return to her father's house, where awaited the things she desired.

For what did she get out of her present position? Nothing that she really cared for. She was not doing the work that was an expression of herself, and the clothes and luxuries she bought with the money she earned gave her no real pleasure.

What is the use of living a life in this way? It isn't life in its real sense. It is merely going through a form of living, but one in which the real self takes no part. For one only lives, when the real self lives and expresses itself. And her real self was finding no expression.

And she was doing this partly because it was the conventional thing to do, and partly because her family seconded her doing it; but also partly because she was afraid to trust this inner voice, because she was afraid to venture into a life that would be an expression of this desire that was the very heart of her.

But isn't the desire the voice of ability? Would one desire to do a thing if, hidden away in his nature, were not the germ of power to do it? Is it not this very spark of ability that is voicing itself in the longing to do?

It may be a very weak voice. It may require much training. But doesn't the desire to do mean the possession of at least some ability to do?

And isn't this capability a part of one's real self. The work we do mechanically or because we have been thrust into it, but in which we have no real interest, does not express our true selves. But the work we do with our heart and soul, which is the output of our very being, is an expression of our real self.

And need we fear to trust this call? For is not the desire to do assurance of the power to do, and is not the expression of our real self, an expression of that which is eternal and eternally sustained? For underneath the real things are the foundations of the universe.

So in reality it is safe to listen to the inner voice, to heed the vision. For though the way may seem dark and full of obstacles there is that to guide which, sooth, not with mortal eyes.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young man, twenty-two years old, a freshman in college, quite popular among the boys, studious and academically inclined, good looking and neat in appearance. Never was fast or spooney. Girls that I have been with don't seem to appreciate my company and never ask me to call again. There are lots of nice girls here. Why can't I go with them?

WILLIAM.

Do you ever invite the girls to any entertainments, or try to make your conversation interesting to them? Calling on a girl isn't sufficient to interest her. You should take her out once in a while, and if you can't afford that, you must find some way of amusing her, for if you don't others will.

Also, perhaps your clothes don't quite meet the approbation of the girls you know. Just as a man wants to go with a well-looking girl, a girl likes to be seen with a well-looking man.

It's all pretty hard on a man's purse, but unless he finds a girl who really loves him, he's got to spend money and time to hold feminine interest.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) What would be a nice position for a girl of my age as I have no mother and my father is very cruel to me? Please tell me what to do. (2) Please give me a recipe for a good tasting candy.

M. L. K.

(1) Perhaps you can find employment in a store or an office. Or possibly you can do something extra well in the way of sewing or cooking or making candy, and sell your work. (2) Here is a good Cream Candy that you could sell in small bags at five cents a bag. To three pounds white sugar add one-half pint water. Set over slow fire for half hour, then add one teaspoon gum arabic, dissolve, add one tablespoon vanilla and beat until brittle (test by a little into cold water to test). Then take it off stove and flavor with vanilla or any flavor liked. Rub your hands with butter and pull until white. It can be twisted into sticks or broken up into small pieces.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of twenty and am engaged to a young man who is attending college in a distant city. He will graduate this spring. (1) Should I give him a present for graduation, and what would be nice to give? (2) What would be proper for me to attend the always in for anything, and with a joyous splash he hit the ocean.

He was seven yards in the lead, 300 yards from shore, when he paused and began to tread water violently.

"I forgot!" he exclaimed. "I can't swim a stroke!"

With a coolness extraordinary in one so young, she waited for him to go down for the third time before she grasped his hair between her teeth and leisurely saved his life.

Puddings.
 Gooseberry Pudding:—Put quart green gooseberries, one-fourth pound sugar, two eggs, one ounce butter, one-fourth pound bread crumbs.

Stew fruit gently till it will pulp, then beat it well with a fork. Take one pint of this pulp, add all the ingredients except eggs, beat well together. When mixture is cool, beat eggs and stir it thoroughly. Put mixture into buttered dish and bake half hour. Sprinkle powdered sugar over before serving.

Emergency Pudding.—Take stale cake (any kind, cookies, doughnuts, molasses or sugar cakes), break up into a pint of cake, let soak a little while. Then add two eggs, lots of raisins, very little sugar (as cake is sweet), pinch of salt, a bit of butter and some vanilla. Eat with any liquid sauce or cream.

French Tapioca Custard.—Soak four tablespoons pearl tapioca in cold water overnight. In the morning put a quart of milk on to boil. Beat yolks of four eggs light, then stir them in to the drained tapioca, adding sugar to taste. Beat all together well and add milk gradually. Return to fire, stir to boiling. Pour into a bowl and season with a teaspoon of vanilla.

Now whip the whites of the four eggs to a standing froth and stir into the cooling pudding.

Eat cold. As good as ice cream.

To Water Tender Plants.
 Some young plants are so tender they cannot stand the sprinkling of water. To overcome this, put a small funnel between the plant and the close to ground and pour the water through this funnel. This thoroughly wets the ground and the plants thrive.

Answers to Inquiries.
 What Will Remove Inhibition Stained Glass?—I have successfully removed this by applying hot vinegar a few times; do not wipe off, but let dry; then it peels off. Another remedy: Take ordinary builder's lime and the same amount of washing soda, pour some water on the lime and dissolve soda in it; stir both together. Wear rubber gloves, use a brush and apply only on the glass.

To dispose of all ants, place a soapstone on the shelf which will gather under the ants, then sprinkle sulphur under the shelf and keep ants away. I have found this very satisfactory.

To Preserve Eggs.
 Eggs are plentiful now and cheap. It is a good time to preserve them. Take one pint salicylate of soda to nine pints of water, boil, then cool this mixture, then put in the eggs carefully. Eggs must be fresh. Keep in a cool place in crocks. This amount preserves five dozens.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am engaged to one who is a third cousin. That is, the father of one and the mother of the other are first cousins. Do you think it is wrong to marry a third cousin? I am very much in love with the one of whom I speak. I wouldn't want to do anything wrong and yet we certainly are one another.

It would not be wrong for you to marry each other.

The Importance of Tact

By REV. H. W. POPE
Superintendent of Men
Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—Unto the Jews I became as a Jew, that I might gain the Jews.—1 Cor. 9:20.

Tact has been described as the art of putting oneself in another's place. It is a work of imagination, and if we have little or no imagination we may know their needs and so supply them, their purposes and so persuade them, their prejudices and so conciliate them.

To do this successfully we must study the condition of those whom we would help, and imagine how we should think and feel if we were in their condition. If we have had any experience in their line of work, it will help us. If not, we can sometimes acquire the requisite knowledge by reading. When Bishop Whittle was called to a mission near the railroad yards he asked an engineer how to reach the railroad operatives. The answer was, "Read Lardner's Railroad Economy" until you are able to ask a question of an engineer and not make him think you are a fool." He won the hearts of the first group of railroad men he addressed by asking them whether they preferred inside or outside connections. When he had done discussing connections, steam heaters, and exhausts, he invited them to his chapel, and every man came the next Sunday.

It is not wise usually to talk to people about their relation to Christ in the presence of others. It embarrasses and it may anger them. However, one can often tell an appropriate story and thus indirectly accomplish the same end without giving offense. Dr. Talmage in the account of his conversion gives a good illustration of tactful preaching in the presence of others. An old evangelist by the name of Osborne stayed one night at his father's house. As the family sat by the fire he said to the father:

"Are all your children Christians?"
"Yes, all but Dewitt," answered the father.
"He did not turn to look at me, but gazed into the fire and quietly told a story of a lamb that was lost on the mountains on a stormy night. Every thing in the fold was warm and comfortable, but the poor lamb perished in the cold. He did not make any application. If he had I should have been mad. But I knew that I was the lamb and I could not get any peace until I found Christ."

The writer was once working at a country fair. In front of the platform provided for the singers and speakers a large number of seats had been placed for the audience. We had an organ, a chorus, and three large megaphones. The latter would carry the sound of the singing half a mile, and people on the race course were soon drawn away by the new attraction. At first the people stood aloof from the seats and refused to occupy them. They had never seen a religious service at a fair and they were suspicious. Noticing this, the leader ordered the singers down from the platform, directing them to scatter about in the seats. As soon as the crowd saw that there were no explosives under the chairs, they crowded in and filled them. Then the leader recalled the singers to the platform, having used them as decoys to allure the people into the chairs. There was no deception about this. The people were timid and suspicious, and it was necessary to show them that there was nothing to be afraid of, and to fill enough of the seats so that they would not make themselves conspicuous by sitting down.

Paul says: "I am become all things to all men, that I may by all means save some." Though he was entitled to a support, yet he worked with his own hands making tent cloth by night, in order that he might not be a burden to the churches; and that he might set an example of generosity to other believers. In this way also he doubtless gained the sympathy and respect of other laboring men. On one occasion when he had been arrested at Jerusalem and was being carried off to prison, he asked the privilege of addressing the crowd. To the surprise of the people who supposed him to be a mischief-making foreigner, he began by saying that he was a Jew, and addressed them in their own language. By this tactful introduction he gained their attention and held it while he told them the wonderful story of his conversion.

If we are conscious of a lack of tact let us ask for it, for the promise is, "My God shall supply all your need." The basis of true tact is a love which shrinks from putting another in an embarrassing situation, and this should always be remembered in dealing with inquirers. True love is also blind to many little faults, but so eager for one's salvation that it misses no good opportunity of pressing home his urgent need of a Savior, and the Savior's supreme love for him.

Joseph Interprets Dreams. Gen. xl.

Golden Text—The breath of the Almighty giveth them understanding. Job xxxiii:3.

(1) Verses 1-4—How much did God have to do with the quarrel of Pharaoh with his chief butler and baker?

(2) What is generally thought to be the crime of which Pharaoh suspected these two men to be guilty?

(3) To what extent, if any, does God in these days "use" bad men and the devil to bring about his purposes?

(4) Verse 5—The various accounts in the Bible concerning dreams make it clear beyond dispute that God in those days used dreams as a medium of his revelations. Is there any reason to believe, or on the contrary, and why, that God still uses the same method?

(5) Give an account of some Bible dreams and say if you have ever had God distinctly speak to you in a dream.

(6) Verses 6-8—Are sadness and sorrow caused chiefly by outward and tangible things or by mental experiences? Give your reasons. (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

(7) If there is nothing in dreams in these days as most people seem to think, why is it that some dreams give us pain and other dreams give us pleasure?

(8) Is it ever or never right to be sad? Why?

(9) Verses 9-12—Is it desirable or not, and why, to have a confidential friend to whom we can open our heart of hearts and tell our inmost experiences?

(10) Why, is it that our dreams in these days seem to have been in those days, are generally connected with our chief occupations or habits?

(11) Verses 14-15—How much real appreciation do those who are engaged in helping their fellows receive from those who are most benefited by their work?

(12) What brought Joseph into that prison, and how do you account for it that God allows such good men to suffer for their very innocence?

(13) Verses 16-19—Why would it not have been better if Joseph had refrained from telling this chief cook the fate which awaited him?

(14) As a rule, would you say it is well or ill to want to pry into the future?

(15) The Egyptians used to embalm the bodies of the dead; why, therefore, would it be a terrible calamity to the baker to have his flesh consumed by the birds?

(16) Verses 20-23—What reason is there, if any, to believe that there are those today who can read the future as Joseph did?

(17) What lesson may we learn from the fact that the chief butler did not remember Joseph?

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, Friday, May 2, 1873.—Hon. Alexander Mitchell and wife make a tour of Europe this season.

The Georgia Minstrels are expected here one week from tomorrow.

Farmers say that the soil was in need of the twenty-four hours' rain which has drenched the earth.

All souls people are happy now, because they have secured Mrs. H. A. Smith as the soprano singer in their choir.

Another drug clerk left our city today for a more diversified field of operation. William Evenson is the one this time and he emanates from the establishment of Hackley & Bailey.

Rev. J. L. Jones, who was attending the Christian conference in Chicago, returned yesterday to preach the funeral sermon of Levi Reed.

Detroit, May 2.—The strait of Mackinac is now fully open, and several steamers passed through from Lake Michigan last night.

The use of the one cent postal card by postoffice department commenced on the first inst. The popularity of this mode of transmitting intelligence through the mails may be inferred from the fact that although the department contracted for five millions to be ready so as to be delivered and distributed to the postoffices before that date, the orders received exceeded in number the first contract by several millions, so that it will be some time before all the offices can be supplied.

PRESENT COUPON TODAY.

Another Chance For Cyclopedias Today and Tomorrow.

Readers have another chance today to take advantage of the great book bargain offered through The Gazette. Everybody's Cyclopaedia is offered for $2.35 and one coupon.

The set is complete in five volumes, bound in beautiful English cloth, and the regular selling price is $12 per set. The $9.65 saved on the purchase price of this set would pay for the daily Gazette for many months.

This great reference work treats 25,000 subjects in all branches of knowledge. Its biographical sketches include celebrities of the earliest times down to those of today. It contains a chronological history of the world from the beginning of all history down to the present. It contains educational charts which record the progress of the entire world.

Many families possess a cyclopaedia of some kind. Most of them are out of date and practically all of them are too large to handle. They are of little value for educational purposes because they are too heavy for children to use, and one must search through page after page to find the desired information.

But in Everybody's Cyclopaedia you find your subject in an instant, with all the facts relating thereto, and all set forth so clearly that a child may quickly grasp the meaning. This reliable, ever-ready reference work should be in every home, even though one may have other sets.

(8) Verses 6-8—Are sadness and sorrow caused chiefly by outward and tangible things or by mental experiences? Give your reasons. (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

(7) If there is nothing in dreams in these days as most people seem to think, why is it that some dreams give us pain and other dreams give us pleasure?

(8) Is it ever or never right to be sad? Why?

(9) Verses 9-12—Is it desirable or not, and why, to have a confidential friend to whom we can open our heart of hearts and tell our inmost experiences?

(10) Why, is it that our dreams in these days seem to have been in those days, are generally connected with our chief occupations or habits?

(11) Verses 14-15—How much real appreciation do those who are engaged in helping their fellows receive from those who are most benefited by their work?

THE FLYING GAME.

This flying game would be all right And meet with high regard If one could properly align— The earth is much too hard!

Bayhood's Wish.
Little Louis, four years old, had been sitting on the sofa all morning when his mother said: "You have been a very good boy all morning. If there is anything you wish I will give it to you, Louis." "I would like to be a bad boy this afternoon," he replied.

Matter of Sound.
It was at one of the West Side schools the other day that the word "catch" came up in the lesson. The little girl who was reciting did not recognize the word, and another small dame was asked to define it. "Catch," she asked. "Why catch means just to catch."—Mother's Magazine.

Fine Remedy for A Backward Child

Continue it for Only a Brief Period and the Good Results Will Surprise You.

A low state of the general health is now the accepted cause of backwardness in children. So in the case of a backward child it is best to look towards building up its health. It will usually be found that the main trouble is in the food, in lack of assimilation and digestion. Hence care should be taken in the kind of food given to the child. This, with plenty of air and exercise, should bring about a change for the better.

Watch the conditions of the bowels, to note whether the waste is being passed off or not, or whether it is being passed too freely. If either condition prevails give a small dose of that gentlest of all laxative tonics, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Thousands of mothers will testify to the wonders it has wrought in the lives of their own children, and for that reason legions of families like those of Mrs. J. E. Brunty, 1903 9th Ave., Nashville, Tenn., are never without it in the house. Mrs. Brunty writes: "Harry had always been constipated until I gave him Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. I am certainly going to keep this medicine in the house in future for I know it to be good." It is pleasant to the taste and so perfectly safe that it is given to infants, and yet is equally effective for grown people. All druggists sell it and the price is only fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, the latter for families who need it regularly.

HARRY BRUNTY.

Syrup Pepsin has no equal as a cure for constipation, indigestion, biliousness, headache, sour stomach, gas on the stomach, liver trouble and kindred complaints. It has so many advantages that those who once use it for ever after discard cathartics, salts, pills and other coarse remedies, for they are seldom advisable and should never be given to children. If no member of your family has ever used Syrup Pepsin and you would like to make a personal trial of it before buying it in the regular way of a druggist, send your address a postal will do—to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 17 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. A free sample bottle will be mailed to you.
